Beverly L. Jenkins : PhotoBomb-a-Day 2015 Calendar before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised PhotoBomb-a-Day 2015 Calendar:

Not Very Funny By Hutch5I bought this thinking it would be a chuckle a day as well, but out of the 365 days I used it, I only chuckled about 10 times. I took this to the office to display on my desk and found that there were some very inappropriate pictures for displaying at the office. I had to remove some before my HR person walked by because I was afraid I might get written up. Most of the photos were just okay, or not even funny at all. I will say that the ones that were funny were hilarious. There were also fun facts and tips on the back of each page. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Ok. Not kid-friendly. By DaFam This is not a kid-friendly product. Many photos are fine, but some are inappropriate for children. Otherwise, it is a mildly amusing product overall. Photo quality and paper are cheap. 0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. disappointed that it's not very funny. or, actually, that it's not funny at all. By Essie's Mamawell, i gave it 2 stars because 1 star means "i hate it," but it's so boring and not funny that i can't even muster up hate for it. it's just blah, and as of 2/6/15, i haven't found even one picture/caption that made me giggle. and i WANT to be amused. i think the material quality is fine and standard for page-a-day calendars, but i wish someone with a sense of humor had written the captions.

According to Urban Dictionary, photobombing is defined as "posing in other people's photos, without the knowledge of the main subjects, for a later surprise." These sneak attacks never fail to bring a picture from "meh" to "magnificent," which is why they regularly make the rounds on humor websites like Reddit, Collegehumor.com, The Huffington Post, the Cheezburger Networks, and more. Featuring a different photobomb each day, this calendar will have readers laughing out loud and plotting their own sneak attacks every time a camera appears!
